Romano's Pizzeria and
Italian Restaurant Today

Nazzareno 'Nat' Romano was born in 1898 in the town of L'Aquila, Italy, and came to America in 1922. A stone mason by trade, Nat started making pizza shells to support his family through the depression. In 1944, he moved to Essington where he opened a pizza shop. With his shop's success, he soon moved to a larger location and in 1950 Nat created the world's first Stromboli.

For over 73 years, Romano's Pizzeria and Italian Restaurant has been a mainstay in Essington, PA. Romano's has a rich and storied past and is now in its third generation as the oldest, family owned and operated Italian Restaurant in Delaware County. From 'Grandpop Nat' selling Tomato Pies out of a wagon in the '30's, to the creation of the Stromboli in the 1950 and a visit from President Clinton's Secret Service in the 90's, the story of Romano's reads like an epic novel spanning oceans, decades and generations.
